The Lonely Londoners: Quotes by Sam Selvon

Sam Selvon's novel "The Lonely Londoners" offers a poignant exploration of the lives of Caribbean immigrants in post-World War II London. Here are some memorable quotes from the book:

1. "London is the loneliest city in the world."

This quote captures the sense of alienation and isolation felt by many immigrants who struggled to find their place in a foreign land.

2. "We had come to London in search of a better life, but all we had found was loneliness and misery."

This line highlights the harsh reality faced by many immigrants who left their homes with high hopes only to encounter disappointment and hardship.

3. "Our rooms were like little boxes, and we were like little mice running around in them."

This description of cramped living conditions conveys the lack of space and privacy experienced by many immigrants who lived in overcrowded boarding houses.

4. "We were the lonely Londoners, lost in a city that didn't want us."

This quote sums up the sense of marginalization and rejection felt by many immigrants who faced prejudice and discrimination in their new home.

5. "But even in our loneliness, we had each other. We were all in the same boat, and we helped each other through."

Despite the challenges they faced, the characters in "The Lonely Londoners" found solace and support in one another, creating a sense of community in the midst of their isolation.
